

CHAPTER I

Meaning and Relevance of History; Distinction of Primary Secondary Sources; External and Internal Criticisms

Module 1 :(3hours)

Title: Learning History

Introduction:

This chapter exposes students to where our history comes from. It presents history as an academic discipline. It discusses the definition, the importance of studying history.

History is defined and brought together by social scientists of many different interests and specialties. History is not confined to the study of the past but, it is related to the past, present, and future. It covers all aspects of human society. Political, social, economic, cultural, scientific, technological, medical, and religious developments are all part of history. Every happening has a specific context and it leads to specific effects. The present of today is going to be the past of tomorrow. Today's situation and current happenings are going to be the past tomorrow. Yesterday has its influence on today and tomorrow. With these, history as a discipline has already turned into a complex and dynamic inquiry.

Learning Outcomes:

At the end of this topic, you are expected to:

1. state and understand the meaning of history;
2. appreciate the importance of studying history;
3. engage deeper understanding with our country's rich history and culture; and
4. study and analyze the sources and come up with an understanding of a historical truth.

Guide Questions:

1. What is your understanding of history? How is your view different from what is explained in this lesson?
2. As a student of history, what do you think will be your duties?
3. Why is there a need to understand and realize the meaning and importance of history?

PRELIMINARIES

Learning Content:

What is History??

History is

- a recitation of unrelated facts that do not contribute to a larger story
- a simple acceptance of what is written about a historical topic, event, or person
- a story of past events, traces of past conditions arranged in chronological order
- a guide for action in the present and for plans in the future
- a continuous and unending process of interaction between the historian and his facts, and between the past and present

History Defined by E.H. Carr ·

- It is the inquiry conducted by the historian and the series of past events into which he inquires. ·It is the continuous process of interaction between the historian and his facts, an unending dialogue between the present and the past
- It is what the historian makes
- It is the re-enactment in the historian's mind of the thought whose history he is studying. - Collingwood
- History is "a selective system" not only of cognitive, but of causal, orientations to reality. - Parsons

Excerpts from Understanding History: A Primer of Historical Method by Louis Gottschalk (1950, New York: Knopf, p.17)

Here are some other definitions of the nature of history:

- a. History is interpretive; it invites students to debate multiple perspectives, offer their opinions and educated interpretations, and challenge existing beliefs.
- b. History is revisionist in scope; it is an on-going and constant process of reexamining the past based on new discoveries, evidence, and perspectives
- c. History is a constant process of questioning; it requires questioning the text, examining them critically, and asking new questions
- d. History is integrative; it is related to other disciplines like geography, sociology, literature, economics etc.

- e. History is inclusive; it includes experiences of all classes, regions, racial groups as well as both genders.
- f. History incorporates historiography; it includes all interpretations of historical events
- g. History is relevant; it uses past experience to help solve present problems

Why Study History?

Looking at the past teaches us to see the world through different eyes - appreciating the diversity of human perceptions, beliefs and cultures. Different and/or new perspectives will enable us to analyze critically the present contexts of our society.

1. To learn about the past.

History enables people to discover and learn about the challenges of people around the world in different periods of time. The satisfaction you will gain from examining these records is the initial reason for studying history.

2. To understand the present.

Links between the past and the present are all around us.

The more knowledge we gain of the past the more insights we have into the present. We can learn valuable lessons from the past to help solve present problems.

3. To appreciate your heritage.

Understanding history will give us greater appreciation of our heritage. It helps us to value these contributions that are the foundation of our culture and tradition, and is the foundation of our future generation.

4. To broaden your perspectives.

5. To acquire a background for critical thinking and analysis.

Instructions: Write T if the statement is correct and F if it is not.

10. History has no use for the present, thus, the saying "past is past" is true.

Instructions: Respond to the given question comprehensively.

[illegible]

Scoring Rubrics for Essay

Category	Exemplary	Superior	Satisfactory	Unsatisfactory
Knowledge/Comprehension 25%	Demonstrates thorough understanding of the topic.	Demonstrates considerable understanding of the topic.	Demonstrates understanding of the topic	Demonstrates limited understanding of topic
Content 25%	Response indicates depth& complexity of thought in answering the essay.	Response indicates simplistic or repetitive thoughts in answering the essay question.	Response lacks focus or demonstrates confused or conflicting thinking.	Response is unclear, illogical or incoherent.
Quality of Writing 25%	The response was written in an extraordinary style& voice. Very information & well organized.	The response was written in an interesting style. Somewhat informative & organized.	Response had a little style or voice Gives some new information but poorly organized.	The response had no style or voice. Gives no new information & very poorly organized.
Grammar,Punctuation & Spelling 25%	Almost no spelling, punctuation or grammatical errors.	Few spelling & punctuation errors, minor grammatical errors.	A number of spelling, punctuation or grammatical errors.	So many spelling, punctuation & grammatical errors that it interferes with the meaning.
Sub Totals 100%
Over-all-Score 100%

Think about or reflect on your past. Has your past influenced you in a way or another? How does your past shape your identity and behavior?

This image shows a full page of blank white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page, providing a template for writing or drawing. There are no margins, text, or other markings present.

Scoring Rubric for Reflection Paper

Category	Exemplary	Superior	Satisfactory	Unsatisfactory
Depth 25%	Response demonstrates an in-depth reflection on the concepts. Viewpoints and interpretations are insightful and well supported.	Response demonstrates a general reflection on the concepts. Viewpoints and interpretations are supported.	Response demonstrates a minimal reflection on the concepts. Viewpoints and interpretations are unsupported or supported with flawed arguments.	Response demonstrates a lack of reflection on the concepts/ Viewpoints and interpretations are missing, inappropriate and/or unsupported.
Structure 25%	Writing is clear, concise, and well organized with excellent sentence and paragraph construction. Thoughts are fully expressed in coherent and logical manner.	Writing is mostly clear, concise, and well organized with good sentence/paragraph construction. Thoughts are expressed in a coherent and logical manner.	Writing is unclear and/or disorganized. Thoughts are not expressed in a logical manner.	Writing is unclear and disorganized. Thoughts ramble and make little sense.
Quality of Writing 25%	Response was written in an extraordinary style and voice. Very Informative and well organized.	Response was written in an interesting style. Somewhat informative and organized.	Response had a little style or voice. Gives some new information but poorly organized.	Response had no style or voice. Gives no new information and very poorly organized.
Grammar, Punctuation and Spelling 25%	Almost no spelling, punctuation or grammatical errors.	Few spelling and punctuation errors and minor grammatical errors.	A number of spelling, punctuation or grammatical errors.	So many spelling, punctuation and grammatical errors that interferes with the meaning.
Sub Totals 100%
Over-all-Score 100%

Strategy:

- Reflection regarding interesting highlights in Philippine history.
- Research on what Teodoro Agoncillo, Reynaldo Ileto and Renato Constantino said about history.

References:

Candelaria, et.al. (2018). Readings in the Philippine History. Rex Printing Company, Inc. Manila, Philippines.

Ligan, et.al., (2018). Readings in the Philippine History. Mutya Publishing House, Inc. Malabon City. Torres, J. V., (2018) BATIS: Sources in Philippine History. Quezon City.

Module 2 (3 hours)

Title: Understanding Sources

Introduction:

Historians and students encounter a large variety of sources during the course of their studies about history. Sources can be classified or labeled as primary or secondary. With the past as history's subject matter, the historian's most important research tool is historical sources.

In general, historical sources can be classified between primary and secondary sources. These sources are useful in learning, understanding and writing history. Students, especially historians and writers should/need to conduct, examine and validate carefully the sources. External and internal criticism should be conducted. External criticism is the examination of the authenticity of evidence while internal criticism is the examination of truthfulness.

The study of history depends greatly on written records, which people have set down on wood, stone, clay, bone and paper. One of the richest sources relies on remains, these offers the researchers a clue about the past simply by virtue of their existence. The wooden columns found at the date of a prehistoric settlement testify for example to the existence of people and tell historians something about their culture. The pegs or dowels they used to fasten building materials further enlighten scholars about their technical skills and artistic capacities. By comparing their artifacts with those with other places historians can further learn something of their commercial or intellectual relations.

Guide Questions:

1. What is the main distinction between primary and secondary sources?
2. Why is primary source and secondary source important in the study of history?
3. What is the purpose of a secondary source?

Learning Outcomes:

At end of this topic, you are expected to:

1. Recognize the distinction between primary and secondary sources.
2. Evaluate primary sources for their credibility, authenticity, and tertiary sources.
3. Enumerate materials which can be considered primary sources and secondary sources.
4. Discuss the difference between internal and external criticism.

PRELIMINARIES

Learning Content:

What are Primary Sources?

- Testimony of an eyewitness
- A primary source must have been produced by a contemporary of the event it narrates
- Primary sources are materials produced by people or groups directly involved in the event or topic being studied.
- They are either participants or witnesses.

Formally, there are eight types of these primary sources:

1. Autobiographies and memoirs
2. Diaries, personal letters, and correspondence
3. Interviews, surveys, and fieldwork
4. Photographs and posters
5. Works of arts and literature
6. Speeches and oral histories

What are Secondary Sources?

Gottschalk simply defines secondary sources as the testimony of anyone who is not an eyewitness - that is of one who was not present at the event of which he tells. Secondary information is filtered through someone else's perspective.

These are books, articles and scholarly journals that had interpreted primary sources or had used them to discuss certain subjects of history.

Types of Secondary Sources

1. Bibliographies
2. Biographical works
3. Periodicals (Newspaper, magazine and journal)
4. Literature reviews and review articles

What is External Criticism and Internal Criticism?

Historical data has to be examined to verify its authenticity and truthfulness through external and internal criticism.

1. External Criticism

External criticism refers to the genuineness of the documents. It is looking into the authenticity of evidence by examining the physical characteristics and historical characteristics of the documents.

The following are a series of questions to establish the genuineness of a document or relic according to Key (1997).

- a. Does the language and writing style conform to the period in question and is it typical of other work done by the author?
- b. Is there evidence that the author exhibits ignorance of things or events that man of his training and time should have known?
- c. Did he report about things, events, or places that could have been known during the period?
- d. Has the original manuscript been altered either intentionally or unintentionally by copying?
- e. Is the document an original draft or a copy?

2. Internal Criticism

Internal criticism refers to the meaning and truthfulness of the documents. It talks about the value and worth of its contents.

Key (1997), provides the following questions to check the content of a source of information:

- a. What was meant by the author by each word and statement?
- b. How much credibility can the author's statements be given?

Suggested Readings:

- Understanding History: A Primer of Historical Method by Louis Gottschalk (New York, 1950)
- Writings of Teodoro Agoncillo, Reynaldo Ileto and Renato Constantino about history
- Robert B. Fox. The Tabon Caves: Archaeological Explorations and excavations on Palawan Island, Philippines (Manila, 1970) p. 40
- William Henry Scott. Prehispanic Source Materials for the Study of Philippine History (Revised Edition) Quezon City, 1984) pp. 14-15

Activity 1

True or False. Write T if the statement is correct and F if it is false.

- ___ 1. It is from our historical sources that our history is studied and written.
- ___ 2. Primary sources are materials produced by people or groups directly involved in the event or topic being studied.
- ___ 3. Photographs, old sketches and drawings are examples of secondary sources.
- ___ 4. Secondary source is a testimony of anyone who is not an eyewitness.
- ___ 5. Examples of primary sources are books, articles and scholarly journals.
- ___ 6. Only primary sources may be used in writing history.
- ___ 7. Internal criticism is done by looking at a source's quality of paper and type of ink, among others.
- ___ 8. There are three types of sources: primary, secondary, and tertiary.
- ___ 9. Only secondary sources may be used in writing history.
- ___ 10. The historian's most important research tools are historical sources.

Activity 2

Essay. Answer the following:

1. List the categories of sources that historical researchers use and give examples for each.

2. What criteria do historical researchers use to validate their sources of data?

Scoring Rubrics for Essay

Category	Exemplary	Superior	Satisfactor y	Unsatisfactor y
Knowledge/ Comprehensio n 25%	Demonstrates thorough understanding of topic.	Demonstrate s considerable understandin g of the topic.	Demonstrate s understandin g of the topic	Demonstrates limited understanding of topic
Content 25%	Response indicates depth & complexity of thought in answering the essay.	Response indicates simplistic or repetitive thoughts in answering the essay question.	Response lacks focus or demonstrates confused or conflicting thinking.	Response is unclear, illogical or incoherent.
Quality of Writing 25%	Response was written in an extraordinary style & voice. Very information & well organized.	Response was written in an interesting style. Somewhat informative & organized.	Response had a little style or voice Gives some new information but poorly organized.	Response had no style or voice. Gives no new information & very poorly organized.
Grammar, Punctuation & Spelling 25%	Almost no spelling, punctuation or grammatical errors.	Few spelling & punctuation errors, minor grammatical errors.	A number of spelling, punctuation or grammatical errors.	So many spelling, punctuation & grammatical errors that it interferes with the meaning.
Sub Totals 100%
Over-all-Score 100%

Activity 3: Identification

Test I. Direction. Determine if the source would be a Primary Source (P) or a Secondary Source (S).

- _____ 1. Statistical tables, graphs and charts.
- _____ 2. A YouTube video describing how the rice terraces were built.
- _____ 3. A biography of Ferdinand Marcos written by a foreigner.
- _____ 4. A book describing Ferdinand Magellan sailing to the Philippines.
- _____ 5. A contemporary artist's painting of what life was probably like in the 19th century.
- _____ 6. A history book describing the life of Gregorio del Pilar in the Battle of Tirad Pass.
- _____ 7. Nestor Mata described his experience about the plane crash of 1957 that took the life of former Pres. Magsaysay.
- _____ 8. A legal document signed by two contracting parties.
- _____ 9. A text book describing the EDSA Revolution 1.
- _____ 10. A student reading an official report about the cause of Pinatubo's crash in 1957.

Test II. Enumeration:

Enumerate the following:

11-15 Enumerate examples of primary sources used in studying history.

16-20 Enumerate examples of secondary sources that had interpreted primary sources.

References:

Candelaria, et.al. 2018. Readings in Philippine History. Rex Printing Company, Inc. Manila, Philippines.

Ligan, et.al.,2018. Readings in Philippine History. Mutya Publishing House, Inc. Malabon City.

Solmenaro, et.al. 2018. Readings in Philippine History.Fastbooks Educational Supply, Inc. Sampaloc, Manila, Philippines.

Torres, J. V., 2018. BATIS. Sources in Philippine History. Rex Printing Company, Inc.